

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electronic device determines, upon receiving an acquisition request of license data necessary for installing the software or executing a specific function of the software, whether or not license data is issued by referring to management data indicating issue status of license data, stored in a secret area in the electronic device and controls permission or inhibition of issuing the license data stored in the secret area in the electronic device based on the determination result.